Case study: Working with designer, Emma Lass, from Hide and Seek Studios

Background to the partnership

We will shortly be working on our third project with Emma Lass, interior designer at Hide and Seek Studios. We first met Emma in 2016 when we produced items for a Pinders-award-winning care home. To date we have worked on over 150 bedrooms together and many other rooms.

Our most recent project

A large care home was to undergo a major extension and refurbishment. The interior was designed by Emma, with The Care Home Interiors Company procuring, manufacturing, and fulfilling her designs. We handcrafted the upholstery, furniture, curtains, cushions, throws, and lamp shades before installing the complete interior.

From design concepts to reality

Simon, our Production Director, worked with Emma closely to understand her vision before producing detailed drawings of each item required. Many fittings for this home were truly bespoke. From shaped pelmets in the lounges to foot stools in the library. The solid oak bed surround (below right) was meticulously tailored to fit inside the headboard.

“When I first met The Care Home Interiors Company, I wasn’t sure how things would work as they have their own in-house design team, but it couldn’t have been easier. Kerry and her team have a very honest and down-to-earth approach and will work with you in any way you require. I love the fact that they manufacture in-house. I could see my designs become a reality in front of my eyes and I was able to tweak my designs where necessary. The process was simple. Kerry managed the project in its entirety while Simon and I worked closely on the detail. When I went for catch-up meetings at their base in Hampshire, I was able to watch Jess and Laura making the soft furnishings in their workroom. The quality of craftsmanship is so good, it helped to show my designs in their best light. Compared to other suppliers I have used, their products are exceptional. British manufacturing at its best!”
